

Veteran Gets Permit to Use Garage-Home

Three Restrictions To Answer Objections Of Neighbors

TIME LIMIT SET BY BOARD

Marshall V. Z. Ward, Philadelphia war veteran, has been granted an exception to existing zoning laws in Narberth, allowing him to make alterations to a garage located on a property he recently purchased on Merion Ave., Narberth.

The Narberth Board of Adjustment, in an opinion handed down this week, stated that the exception had been granted to allow Ward to remodel the garage so that he and his wife, Sylvia, could use the building as living quarters until a permanent home could be built on the property.

Three Exceptions

The Board, however, limited the exception by three provisos:

1. That the garage shall be occupied only by Ward, his wife and children.
2. Ward is prohibited from selling, renting, leasing or giving away the garage as living quarters after he moves to his new permanent home.
3. The exception shall terminate August 1, 1948, unless the permanent residence has been completed before that date.

Ward, who is now living in the Royal Chester Arms, Philadelphia, appeared before the board last week at public hearing.

Will Build Soon

Neighbors objected to the fact that Ward might allow others to live in the garage after his new home had been completed.

At the hearing, Ward stated that he had purchased the land from Mrs. S. H. Riley, of Chestnut Ave., Narberth, as the site of his future home, and had no intention of living in the garage permanently. He did add, however, that earlier he considered making the garage into a guest house for relatives, but if it was going to hamper the granting of the exception he would change his plans.

Ward has received Government approval and the necessary permits for the building. He has been given an estimate of $1,500 by a contractor for the work to be done.

Made Allowances

George B. Supple, building inspector for the Borough, will grant Ward a permit to begin the work as soon as the application has been made through him.

Application for the exception was made to the Board because of the fact that the garage was the only building on the property.

The property measures 170 by 125 feet, and is entirely surrounded by private homes.

Woman Killed In So. Ardmore Crash

A 35-year-old Norristown woman was killed and five others were injured, one seriously late Sunday night when two automobiles collided at Haverford and College Aves. South Ardmore.

Mrs. Frank Morrison, of 2 Hartman Ave., Norristown, bled to death at the scene of the accident after her head was driven through a window of one of the cars.

Mrs. Morrison's mother, Mrs. Beatrice Solimeo, 55, of 2329 Bonafon Terrace, Philadelphia, suffered serious head and internal injuries. Later this week, her condition was still described as critical by officials of the Bryn Mawr Hospital.

Robert Morrison, 5, and his father, operator of the car, escaped with only minor bruises. The other automobile, operated by Jacinto Oliveria, 48, a caretaker of the J. Stanley Reeves estate, near Coatesville, overturned after the collision and was being freed by a passing motorist. Mrs. Oliveria suffered leg injuries and Anthony was bruised. Oliveria told Haverford Township Police that he was driving south on College Ave., and was almost across the intersection when his car was struck in the rear by the Morrison automobile, coming west on Haverford Ave. The intersection is protected by a traffic light only until 10:30 P. M.

A police call box on the telephone pole struck by the Oliveria automobile was wrecked by the impact and automatically summoned police.

Town Talk

... Being a Column of Chatter About People You Know ...

By DOROTHY M. OGDEN

Some of the most fun we've had recently was attending the Boro School Board meeting on Thursday night. The funniest part of the whole evening was that after the Board voted for a $48,000 fire and theft insurance policy on the school's plant, the fire sirens started shrieking and very shortly engines began to arrive on Essex Ave. The School Board members all leaned out the windows to see what was going on, and it turned out that Mrs. Frank A. Bonner's automatic heater had gone on unexpectedly, and she was so surprised it was a very warm night that she called the Fire Department.

Incidentally, another of the interesting items at the meeting... there was a serenade to the Board during the evening, which sounded as though every member of the Boro School had turned out for the occasion.

AROUND THE TOWN

Congratulations to Bill Durbin on his 50th birthday. Another recently celebrated birthday in the Boro, was that of Lou McCarty, last Friday. Understand Chestnut Ave.'s S. Leroy Wingate family, including their pretty blonde daughter, Peggy, are at Stone Harbor for their summer vacation. Saw Mr. and Mrs. Burt Smith at the James Bland tombstone dedication over in Merion last week. (You remember he wrote "Carry Me Back to Ole Virginia")...

Sorry to hear that Dorothy Maier, kindergarten teacher at the Boro School, is laid up with an appendectomy at the Riverview Hospital in Norristown.

The E. C. Towne family has quite a puzzle on their hands these days. Seems their Persian cat, "Jeepers," disappears at regular intervals and comes home reeking of Shalimar perfume and wearing a red velvet hat and a diamond necklace.

The Townes are happy that "Jeepers" has such good friends, but what they want to know is, whom do they think?

While we have the chance, we want to congratulate Joe Newman, who has just been named Managing Editor of our four papers. Joe is one of my favorite people, and I know you'll enjoy both him and his work.

Mrs. Lewis Scheffey from over on Merion Ave., was telling me that she is expecting Lou, Jr. home any day this week. He is back in the country (guess you know that he has been overseas with the Marines for a year or more on Guam and Truk) and will be discharged from Great Lakes shortly.

The Boro will surely miss the Claghorn family from Chestnut Ave. Mrs. William C. Claghorn.

Divorce Asked By Mrs. Kenworthy

A suit for divorce against former State Superior Court Judge Charles E. Kenworthy was filed in Philadelphia Friday by Mrs. Elizabeth R. Kenworthy, of Righter's Mill Rd., Penn Valley.

The suit, filed by Mrs. Kenworthy's attorney, Philadelphia City Solicitor Frank F. Truscott, charged indignities. A property settlement has been made, it was stated.

The Kenworthys were married in Bryn Mawr October 5, 1927, and have three daughters, Ann, 18; Pamela, 12, and Elizabeth, ten, who are now living with Mrs. Kenworthy in Penn Valley.

Judge Kenworthy, who resigned from the bench in 1944, is now living at the Drake Hotel, 1512 Spruce St., Philadelphia.

Only Nine Building Permits Issued

During the month of June, nine building permits were issued at Narberth at a cost of $16. Nine jobs were completed and 71 inspections made, according to a report filed last week by Sterling M. Chain, chairman of the building committee.

The committee, headed by J. J. Cabrey, chairman, continued a custom followed since the beginning of the community celebration on Independence Day, in presenting the money to the Legion Post after all bills incurred for the celebration had been paid.

$750 Part of Surplus

Carl B. Metzger, Jr., treasurer of the committee, stated that the $750 was only a part of the surplus, and that a reserve had been maintained for use of the athletic committee of the 1947 program. It was spent for prizes and other expenses.

Officials of the committee pointed out that the custom provides for the donation of the surplus from the collection made during the celebration to a local cause which had "general community acceptance."

The contribution is earmarked by the committee for specific purposes, and does not add to general working funds of the organization receiving the donation.

Building Fund

Frank M. Challenger, commander of the Narberth Post, stated that the donation will be applied to a fund to acquire headquarters for veterans to be located in the Borough.

In the past, the Narberth Baseball Club has received donations of $500 to pay off heavy debts accumulated over a period of several years.

The Narberth Fire Company, another group to receive a donation, used the money to buy 22 uniforms for members to use on guard duty or when participating in parades and occasions requiring formal dress.

Mr. Thompson, how about a letter to the butcher, the baker, and the grocer!

Death Laid to Pill Overdose; War Hero Son Died July 13

The body of Charles W. Latch, whose 24-year-old son, Charles, Jr. died July 13 from wounds received in the Battle of Midway, was found early Wednesday morning in a dense wood on the old Percival Roberts Estate, Penn Valley.

Beside the 59-year-old man's body, discovered on a blanket off Hagyesford Rd., were two bottles of barbiturate, a sleeping potion he had been taking since the death of his son.

Lower Merion police attributed death to an overdose of the pills. Members of his family reported Latch missing at 1:30 A. M. Wednesday after he disappeared from his home, 342 Dudley Ave., Narberth.

A searching party of friends and relatives was organized and went to the neighborhood of the Roberts Estate, opposite which the Latch's owned a farm several years ago.

Couple Robbed Of $16,500 At Shore

A Merion couple, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley G. Berger, of City Line Ave. and Lapsley Rd., were robbed of $16,500 in cash and gems from their hotel rooms as they lounged on the beach at Atlantic City, N. J., last week-end.

The robbery, disclosed Monday by resort detectives, was the first this season of a large beach-front hotel, but one of a number of similar thefts in smaller hotels at Atlantic City.

$3,000 Ring

Included in the loot taken from the Berger's room was a cocktail ring, containing a five and a half carat diamond and five smaller diamonds, valued at more than $3,000.

Also taken were a diamond bracelet valued at $1,000, two sets of diamonds of one carat each, a pearl necklace and almost a score of other pieces of jewelry. In addition to the gems, $3,760 in cash was taken.

Berger, operator of a shoe store at 1619 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, told police they left their fourth floor room at 1:30 P. M. to go to the beach. When they returned, they found the room ransacked, the bed overturned, bureau drawers emptied and their contents strewn on the floor.

Door Locked

Police, who said Berger found the door of his room locked when he and Mrs. Berger came back from the beach, were unable to explain how the thief or thieves gained entrance, unless they pointed out, the door was ajar when the couple left earlier in the afternoon.

Only 1800 totally blind cases are listed in the records of the U. S. Army, Lt. Paul Conlan, chief of the Blind Reconditioning Service at Valley Forge General Hospital told members of the Ardmore Optimist Club at their Tuesday luncheon meeting.

Conlan, former state director for the blind in Michigan, said that blind casualties were the hardest to help rehabilitate because the newly blind man is an unknown quantity when he arrives at a hospital from the front lines.

Start To Live Again

"He must be taught the simplest tasks in a dark world. He must learn to eat, dress himself, walk, buy things at the stores; in short, he has to start to live from scratch, and it is not an easy job," Conlan added.

Conlan also spoke of the Blind Program inaugurated at Old Farms Convalescent Home, Arvon, Conn.

"There," he said, "men who may learn almost any trade, and they leave equipped to earn their way in the world. Since they do receive pensions adequate to take care of them, we try to furnish them with a trade or profession to keep them from feeling they are objects of charity," he added.

Building Permits Almost Double

150 Percent Increase Reported For First Six Months' Period

An increase of almost 150 per cent in the number of building permits issued in Lower Merion in the first six months of this year compared with the same period last year was announced this week by Jesse L. Stetler, Township Building Inspector.

Estimated cost of the new building was $3,467,320 compared with a figure of $2,064,433 for last year. In June estimated cost of new building was $387,000, compared with $55,899 for June last year.

703 Through June
In the first six months of this year, Stetler reported, 703 building permits were issued, a figure almost as large as the total number of permits issued during the entire year of 1945.

In 1944, when building was at its lowest wartime level, less than 500 permits were issued in the township, he reported. In 1943, slightly over 500 permits were granted.

High year for building in Lower Merion was 1944 when almost 17,000 permits were issued.

Post-War Revival
In the years following the last World War, Stetler reported, the township experienced a similar building revival. Highs were reached in 1925, when more than 10,000 permits were issued, and again in 1928 when the figure reached almost that number.

In the depression years, building permits issued hit new low levels. From 1931 to 1934 the figure hovered close to the 500 a year mark, which were larger, however, than the 1944 war year figure of less than 500.

During the past four years, Stetler stated, the number of dwellings of all types built in the township was less than 15 percent of the number constructed during the preceding four years.

1925 Record Year
In cost of new construction, Stetler reported, record high was reached in 1925 when more than $13,000,000 was spent. During the depression years, the figures remained close to $1,000,000 annually.

A post-depression high was reached in 1941 when more than $6,000,000 was spent on new dwellings, a figure, however, far below 1925's high of more than $13,000,000. In the war years of 1943 and 1944, less than $1,000,000 was spent annually.

In 1945, Stetler stated, the figure started to climb again and reached $3,000,000.

Construction of single family homes, he reported, reached an all-time high in 1944, when more than 500 such units were built. A sharp drop during the war years was followed by an upswing in 1945, when less than 50 were built.

Private funeral services were held Friday at her home and burial was in the family plot in Albany, N. Y. She is survived by a sister, Miss Florence M. Mink, of St. Paul's Rd., Ardmore.

To Widen Road

A resolution authorizing township co-operation with the State Highway Department in widening and straightening E. Wynnewood Rd. near the N. Wynnewood Rd. was passed at last Wednesday's meeting of the Lower Merion Township Board of Commissioners.

New Speed Zone

A 35 mile per hour speed zone has been established on E. Wynnewood Rd. from Lancaster Ave. to N. Wynnewood Rd., Wynnewood.

rouned up County Line Rd. until Monday morning. Power lines were torn down in the neighborhood, and service was out as far west as Villanova for over an hour. A large branch of a tree was down across Montgomery Ave. at Rosemont College almost totally blocking traffic. Lower Merion Township Police placed red lanterns in the road to warn motorists.

Lightning hit the three-story house of Mrs. M. Zeller, of 155 Crickett Ave., Ardmore. Mrs. Marie Westman was on the porch with her daughter, Patricia Ann, 2, when the bolt struck. Mrs. Westman rushed into the house and led her other daughter, Ida Marie, 4, from the third floor. The Merion Fire Co. put out a small fire that was started on the second floor where the power line enters the house.

Another bolt toppled the chimney at the home of Jacob Schiller, of 1417 Hillside Rd., Wynnewood. George D. Collins, a neighbor, saw the house struck and notified the Penn Wynne Fire Company. Schiller, who works for the Lester Piano Mfg. Co., said, "We saw the lightning arc around the house but thought at first it had hit the house next door."

One of the recommendations was for installation of two-way radios in police cars throughout the township. Thomas J. Gallen, of Lowrys Lane, Garrett Hill, made that proposal and George Sacks, president of the Rosemont Civic Association of Radnor Township proposed that more patrolmen be added to the force.

Residents complained that the township has only 28 policemen in a 24-square mile area, containing 12,000 persons. Edgar L. Scott, commission president, former head of the Philadelphia Stock Exchange assured the gathering that their proposals would be considered at the regular meeting next Monday night.

Amadia Family

Townsville, began to date Rosemary. But theirs was no hasty wartime marriage, for they didn't become engaged until June 28, 1944.

Lived in Townsville
On January 10, 1945 they were married and they were able to settle down to housekeeping in Townsville.

Barbara Rosemary joined the family circle on March 19 of this year and in her first four months she has travelled more than halfway around the world, to come to live in her father's land.

Lou was shipped home on June 7 from Australia. Once he received his Army discharge, he resumed his work at the Philadelphia Electric Company's Country Club in Upper Darby where he has been employed since 1933. The four and a half years he served with the Army (48 months of it were spent overseas) are counted by the company on his seniority time so he has more than 13 years of employment with them, though he is only 31 years old.

The Amadios will live with Lou's family during the housing shortage, but before they settle down Lou is going to give his bride a second honeymoon in New England and Canada. They plan to take a two-week motor trip during Lou's vacation, this summer.

Mrs. E. O'Connell, 62, Of Haverford, Dies

Mrs. Emily A. O'Connell, wife of Patrick J. O'Connell, of 478 Barrett Rd., Haverford, died Friday in Bryn Mawr Hospital after a short illness. She was 62.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by four daughters, Sister M. Consuelo, S. M.; Mrs. Dorothy M. Mailey, of Cynwyd; Marion and Edna, of Bryn Mawr; and two sons, Joseph, of Washington, D. C. and Francis D., and nine grandchildren.

Solemn Requiem Mass was sung Monday morning at Our Mother of Good Counsel Church, Bryn Mawr. Burial was in St. Denis Cemetery.

At Middlebury

Miss Helen Wachs, of 70 W. Princeton Rd., Bala-Cynwyd, is studying at the Middlebury College French School under a scholarship grant during the Summer session.

Bridge Closed

The Church Rd. Bridge, Ardmore, will be closed for repairs until September 1, it was announced this week by the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Named Professor

Francis Madeira, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy C. Madeira, of 26 Tunbridge Rd., Haverford, has been named assistant professor of music at Brown University, Providence, R. I.

To Attend School

Fire Marshal Harvey W. Benson will attend the Pennsylvania State Fire School at Lewistown, to be held from August 4 to 11.

Plan Maintenance Crews For Schools

L. M. Board to Hire New Employees to Care For Buildings

The School Board of Lower Merion Township authorized the organization of two new departments within the school system at its monthly meeting last Monday night.

The two new departments, one for the maintenance of buildings, and the other for the maintenance of grounds throughout the school district, will be inaugurated in the Fall term.

To Hire 9 Men
A crew of four men, including an expert carpenter, a mechanic, a laborer and a plasterer will be hired for the buildings department.

The Board authorized the employment of a trained horticulturist, who will in turn hire four additional men for his staff. They will do planting, transplanting, seeding, spraying, trimming, mowing, rolling and will see to the upkeep and marking of the various athletic fields, and other work necessary to keep up the appearance of the grounds.

The adoption of this new Plan followed the recommendation of a special committee, appointed by E. E. Burlingame, president of the board, earlier in the year.

Money-Saver
Members of the Board agreed that much money could be saved during the year by seeing to it that necessary repairs were made at once, instead of waiting for bids and letting contracts at the end of the school term.

They also felt that 21 school buildings, 112 acres and a $35,000 original investment in shrubs should entail some expense to the Board for general and continuous upkeep. A salary of approximately $3,600 was mentioned for the hiring of a trained horticulturist from Penn State, but no other expenses were fixed at Monday's meeting.

Work to Start

sioners will meet August 12 for possible action.

F. H. A. Approval
Stephen Schifter, architect and builder of the new homes, of 2206 Darby Rd., South Ardmore, emphasized that the project had received F. H. A. authorization several months ago, and that actual building was awaiting only formal approval.

The new homes are being built under provisions of a Federal law passed in March designed to encourage building of lower priced dwellings by prohibiting construction of new homes selling for more than $10,000.

The Bryn Mawr Farms development homes are expected to sell for that figure.

Schifter announced this week that the entire block of 150 homes had been sold within two weeks of original approval of construction plans. No definite plans, he said, had yet been made for construction of the remaining 250 units of the project.

The homes, Schifter said, will have identical floor plans, but will be of three different exterior designs. They will be two stories high, constructed primarily of stone, and will contain six rooms and one bath.

They will average a 52 foot frontage and the lots will extend from 100 to 200 feet in depth.

The tract on which the new project will be built is bounded on the north by County Line Rd., on the west by Cooperstown Rd., by the Philadelphia and Western tracks on the east and by Landover Rd. on the south.

Damon and Foster, of Sharon Hill, engineers, sub-divided the tract.

Town Talk

will marry Lorin Angerine, owner and editor of the Ocean City Sentinel-Ledger in the Fall after her son, Donald, has graduated from Drexel. Donald is hoping to go to Columbia for graduate work, and I guess you know that his brothers, Gene and Allen, are living and working in New York now . . .

The William Fergusons had Mrs. Ferguson's brother, Dick Bailey, as a guest over the weekend. Mrs. Ferguson was telling me, by the way, that her daughter (she's Marty Ferguson Ludlow) and her two children just returned from a month at the shore, and that the children are looking very bouncy and healthy. (They are darling children named Barbie and Johnny).

Well, speaking of children, little Jackie McDonald (he's the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank McDonald from Montgomery Court Apt.) has himself a new baby brother, Charles Robert, who is just arrived home from Bryn Mawr Hospital.

Eva Sargent says that her son, Bill, and his wife, Dottie, have themselves a dream apartment of 2 rooms. In an old Gothic mansion, set among three acres of trees, and other accoutrements. It sounds like Heaven, and they were really lucky to find it because they had been putting off their wedding until they could get a place to live.

By the way, Bill's sister, Jean, who is a Junior at Penn, is a counselor for the Summer at (and I'm not kidding) Camp Robin Hood, in Sherwood Forest at Green Lake, Wisconsin . . .

Poor Walter Tillman—he's the husband of the former Anne Parry, Cynwyd tennis player—he has to spend most of his Summer in New York because he has been transferred over there for this season, poor man. New York Summers are no fun, I know because I lived through one, once.

Maybe Charlie Girvin doesn't get the prize stories. This time it was a small calf, which apparently fell off the back of a cattle truck. Charlie found him playing around the Narberth School lapsed him and loved him into the Boro Garage where he tried to find some one with a constructive suggestion about what to do with the poor little fellow. Last I heard they were thinking of putting him with our goat in our backyard pen. I wasn't too happy with that idea because I figured he might have it on our hands for some years in case it is never called for.

Lucky people are Frank and Elizabeth Foltz! They have a brand new Studebaker, and are envy of everyone in the Boro. You know they are the children of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Foltz over on Chestnut Ave. . . .

Must stop for this week, but many thanks for all your items and phone calls. See you next week, same time, same place, and goodbye for now . . .

Importance of Minor Judiciary
In Guaranteeing Bill of Rights

(Because The Editors agree with Justice of the Peace Walter B. Lounes, Jr., of Lower Merion Township, that the public knows too little about the working of the minor judiciary, we are printing this week excerpts from a speech he delivered recently before the Ardmore Rotary Club. Magistrate Lounes is a former president of the Montgomery County Justice of the Peace Association.)

The minor judiciary is composed of officers called justices of the peace in boroughs and townships, aldermen in cities of the second class and magistrates in cities of the first class. Collectively they are known as the minor judiciary, (about which the public knows very little.

As far as volume of work is concerned, these officers are really the major judiciary. They make more than ninety per cent of all legal decisions, and are the only part of entry into the criminal courts.

A criminal case must first be screened through the minor judiciary. Practically all civil cases where the debt or demand is less than three hundred dollars originate in the minor judiciary.

Their primary function is to guard the citizens against any unjust intrusion by government. Contrary to popular belief, they are more interested in keeping citizens out of jail than in committing them.

They see to it that every defendant is given the rights guaranteed him under the Bill of Rights as well as under the Declaration of Rights in our State Constitution.

When a person is arrested who is alleged to have committed a crime, he must be brought before a magistrate at the earliest possible moment. This has been construed to mean early the next morning.

Summary Conviction
If the charge is of a minor nature, the magistrate may proceed to a summary conviction. That is, he determines guilt or innocence and renders a verdict accordingly. Some people object to this in the belief that everyone is entitled to a trial by jury. But even if an appeal is taken from the magistrate's verdict to the County or District Court, the case is heard by a judge without a jury.

When the prisoner faces the magistrate, and the charge does not permit summary disposition, the magistrate merely decides whether or not there is sufficient evidence for the Grand Jury to hear. If he decides that a "prima facie" case has been established, he determines the amount of bail and binds the defendant over to the next term of court. If he decides the case is too weak for consideration by the Grand Jury, he has the authority to discharge the defendant. It is this power to discharge after a hearing that gives the minor judiciary its greatest source of power. He may discharge anyone accused of any crime.

The magistrate should not hear any criminal case unless the charge has been reduced to writing and in the form of an affidavit or complaint. The charge must be specific and important facts of the alleged violation should be incorporated in the complaint.

"Open Charges"
The practice of magistrates, complying with requests of police, in holding a defendant on a so-called "open charge" or "for investigation" cannot be too strongly condemned. (This practice is forbidden by the Constitution.) If the magistrate is well chosen, the defendant should have a feeling of relief when he faces him. From the moment a defendant pleads "not guilty," the magistrate must assume he is not guilty until the prosecution can establish, by evidence, a "prima facie" case. The defendant is not expected to know his Constitutional Rights, but the magistrate should inform the defendant of them before the hearing begins. If the charge is of a serious nature, he should persuade the defendant to engage counsel and continue the case until such time as counsel can be secured.

The purpose of the preliminary hearing is to give the defendant an opportunity to face his accuser and hear the nature of the charges against him so that he can prepare his defense. The magistrate should use every means within his power to have the prosecutor "lay his cards on the table"—make him represent all evidence in his possession. The practice of withholding an important witness at the hearing and then later calling a "surprise" witness at the trial cannot be too strongly condemned. This defeats the intent of the Constitution and does not give the defendant time to prepare rebuttal testimony.

Benefit of Doubt
A successful magistrate, in my opinion, is one with a high percentage of discharged cases or cases he refuses to allow to be prosecuted. The defendant is to be given the benefit of every honest doubt. He should operate on the old American theory that it is better for a hundred guilty men to go free than for one innocent man to suffer.

This office, handed down from ancient English practice, has been in continual existence since the reign of William the Conqueror. It has stood the test of time.

The office has a long and honorable history in the English governmental system. These officers were appointed by the crown and for the most part served without pay, similar to our "dollar-a-year" men in Washington.

The English squire was a respected and learned man. The English magisterial system was, and is, exemplary, and was carried over into the Colonies and we, in Pennsylvania, patterned very closely after them.

Several changes were made, however. First, the magistrates of Pennsylvania are elected rather than appointed. Second, they are elected, for the most part, from the middle class rather than from persons of wealth.

Our State Legislature made several other changes. While they never intended that a person should make a livelihood from this office, they did provide fees to defray the cost of maintaining an office. The fee system has been the basis for more criticism. In addition, they added jurisdiction in civil cases which the English squire did not have.

In Colonial days, magistrates and lawyers were on an equal footing. The public favored the justice of the peace over the lawyer. They wanted their disputes settled quickly and more on the merits and the sense of a situation rather than on technical rule of law.

However, the justice of the peace did not keep abreast of the times as years went by, and as the legal profession placed increasing emphasis on training the two were no longer on an equal footing.

However, this defect in the system is now corrected. The Public Service Institute has established schools in many parts of the State and members of the minor judiciary are undergoing special courses in criminal and civil procedure to fit them for office. These schools are open to all squires, books and tuition free. Every squire can now receive one hundred and forty-four hours of class room instruction without any charge or cost to himself.

Issue Warning
Against Overgrown
Vegetation

"It's time for the scythe and the sickle," Keystone Automobile Club asserts in calling attention to dangerous conditions at numerous cross-roads, due to the summer's growth of vegetation, which obscures the vision of motorists entering the intersections.

Edward P. Curran, Safety Director of the Club, said Keystone is in receipt of complaints from drivers whose lives have been imperiled at obscured road and street crossings. In many cases, property owners do not fully realize the hazard motorists are subjected to, he pointed out, and are quick to take remedial action when the matter is brought to their attention. Others, he said, appear to be indifferent to the danger.

The Club official asserted the danger is particularly serious at points where "slow" and "stop" signs are obscured.

Handicapped Must Create The Illusion of Appearing Normal

(Editor's Note: Mrs. Elizabeth Burt Byall, unable to walk without the aid of crutches for 30 years as the result of Polio when she was a baby, has written a series of articles, of which this is the first. She is particularly anxious to tell her story to disabled veterans who are trying to adjust themselves to a new way of life. Mrs. Byall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Burt, of Narberth, graduated from Lower Merion High School in 1932, studied at the University of Pennsylvania and took advanced courses in medical technology at Jefferson Hospital, Philadelphia. She has been a member of the staff of Dr. S. DeWitt Ludlum's Gladwyne Colony since 1942. She and her husband, Evan Bruce Byall, live on Black Rock Rd., Gladwyne.

By Mrs. Elizabeth B. Byall

A handicap brings unrelenting challenge 24 hours a day. I know. I've been in the business of being successfully handicapped for almost 30 years. I feel that what I have to say belongs to everyone. It applies to you. Much of it, of course, refers to obvious handicaps.

Negative Point of View
But basically it is applicable to the handicaps which do not show, and especially to those of you whose handicap is a negative point of view, to you whose prejudices, whose intolerance, whose ignorance make the writing of this necessary.

I expect to dwell on some very sensitive spots. Much of what I say will be unpleasant. We are dealing with a starkly forthright subject.

At 31, I have most of the things most unhandicapped people give a lifetime to obtain, and I know from intensive personal experiences how these things can be had.

It's not easy . . . a handicap is nothing to underestimate. But then the world won't let you do that, so that is one mistake you aren't likely to make.

Mirrored Walls
I wish every handicapped person might live for a time within mirrored-paneled walls while he is integrating himself and his handicap into a successful pattern.

There's nothing like getting acquainted with the product you're going to try to sell to the public. And thereafter, all through his life, I would return him at regular intervals to the mirrored
